WASHINGTON, Jan. 23, 1855.—The Gathering of Statesmen in Washington—The Two Oceans.

There is an unusual gathering of Pennsylvania and New York politicians at Washington. Fremont, from whom the former State is Governor Bicker. The object of his visit is supposed to be connected with the French mission. The Governor is accompanied by a considerable delegation of democratic members of the legislature, who are understood to have come prepared to furnish the President with a full report of the Anti-Fugitive, together with affidavits of his democratic orthodoxy, which your readers will remember, was impeached during the last session, on the ground that he did not accept the Nebraska bill as a sufficient private compromise at that time.

It is urged that to testow the distinguished and much coveted position upon Governor Bicker would be such a concentration of patronage upon Pennsylvania as would give just offence to the faithful democracy of other states. The Governor has been so long absent that he should expect to retain the place and the salary which he enjoys, the locomotion of Pennsylvania is a despatcher than that of any other Northern state. His disciples are entitled to a double share of State honors.

The convection of soft shell politicians from New York, including the Surveyor, the Postmaster, the legate District Attorney, and several ex-members of Congress, has reference to the enlargement of the Mint establishment, the objects of which appear to be for a post office and a federal court house, and the bestowal of some suitable testimonial of merit upon Governor Seymour.

The two organs of the administration are attuned to discreditable purposes, an apologetic and expostive speech, Kinney and his project, the formation of the Central American expedition with formidable mapping and prediction of failure. It has an article this afternoon which is thought to have been prepared by the Attorney General, and which intimates that the government is about to take steps to prevent the consummation of the plan of the adventurers. This is in exact accordance with what was stated in this correspondence last week.

The Prohibitory Liquor Measure.—If the prohibitory liquor measure reported by the majority of the special committee of the Legislature, becomes a law, it will prohibit the sale of all liquors, and raising a large per centage of pure liquors, will have to be removed from their appropriate places of sale, and all trade in them circumscribed to the town or ward elector, who alone is allowed to sell anything that, by any means, may be called a spirituous or intoxicating beverage. There are many articles of a medicinal character, possessing the objectionable intoxicating quality, (too freely indulged in,) which ought not to come under the ban of the law, and the sale of which pro- hibition would be inappropriate. It is the duty of the Legislature, if a person is laboring under an affliction of chronic diarrhoea or any disease of that nature, he or she in those circumstances does not want to reveal the fact to a ward or a town elector, merely to obtain a little cordial, may do; nor does he, by telling him why he wishes to purchase an article, easily adapted to a disease or class of diseases quite common to our species; nor yet does a man in apparent good health, though groaning under those forms of disease, which the celebrated Acutechic Schenck's technique is particularly fitted for, feel justified in telling the elector, who desire to have all the benefits of asaraparin, the extract of sarsaparilla, and may be communicated to John Trippett & Brother, 62 William street, New York.

In the fall of 1843 I was compelled to use your Dr. Brundrett's universal salts, and since that time I became restored to excellent health through their use. They mildly, yet energetically purged, and after each portion I seemed to be endowed with new life. My original robust health was soon restored, and I thank God for it. Dr. Brundrett, Dr. H. A. Henry and others will address the meeting after which there will be a debate by the discussion class.
